

Getting people to share their stories isn't always easy. Follow these tips for a successful interview!

1. Schedule a time in advance. This gives everyone a chance to prepare. Try to make it at a time and place when there won't be any distractions or disturbances.
2. Prepare a list of questions. (Use the Interview Question Guidelines handout.) Either share them with your relative or friend a day or so before the interview, or give them an idea of what you want to talk about.
3. Reassure them. Put your interviewee at ease by telling him or her that he or she will have a chance to see and approve anything that you write before you share it with others.
4. Bring several pens or pencils. If you plan to make a recording, be sure to have a tape player, microphone, extra tapes, and batteries. Make sure the tape player is working.
5. Take good notes. Make sure you record the date and time, your name, the name of the interviewee, and the relationship you have with that person (aunt, cousin, friend, etc.)
6. Start with the right question or topic. Lead off with something you know will get a reply, such as a story you have heard him or her tell in the past.
7. Avoid “yes” or “no” questions. These simple answers won't make for a very interesting interview. Try to get facts, feelings, stories, details, and descriptions from the person you interview.
8. Show interest. Take an active part in the dialogue without dominating it. Learn to be a creative listener.
9. Use significant objects when possible. Old photographs, favorite old songs, and treasured items may bring memories flooding back.
10. Don't push for answers. Sometimes people have their own reasons for not wanting to answer a question. If someone is uncomfortable about sharing, move on to another question.
11. Let them “wander.” Use your prepared questions as a guideline, but don't be afraid to let your interviewee keep on talking. You relative or friend may have many things to say that you never thought to ask!
12. Don't interrupt or correct them. This can end an interview in a hurry! You're there to get a story. Ask questions and listen.
13. Write it up. After the interview, consider preparing a transcript or written report to give your interviewee to thank him or her for participating in your project.
